I'm delighted to have met you!

You most likely encountered me at some convention or during an alien invasion, but you're not really sure anymore. Perhaps you were favorably impressed, perhaps not. If you met me during an alien invasion, it's hard to say, as the mind control laser sattelites have left your memory of events somewhat fuzzy. In any case, it is likely that you can't remember which, or even which of the dozens of people you met there goes with the name[1]. You don't know whether to keep in touch, contact me about something specific, or avoid me at all cost. That's where this card comes in. You may check the appropriate box and use the space provided below to record the reasons, or just put this card in your sock drawer and forget about it. This card can be used to protect one eye against alien vortex stunners in a pinch.

1 I'm the filker who plays guitar and sings. No, that's Tim Walker, I'm an American. No, not him, I'm about 6'tall, brown hair, beard and moustache. Um, no, that's Marc Glasser, who is no relation. I don't live on the East Coast. No, that's Paul Kwinn; although both of us have lovely women singing with us, I play a 12 string guitar most of the time, and live in the Mid-West. No, that's Steve Macdonald. No, that's Michael Longcor. I can see that this isn't going to work, so let's just drop it for now.

This card is printed at 600dpi. Be thankful that he isn't using a 1200dpi laser printer, or this would be in 1pt type

The opinions expressed on this card are those of the author, not of the paper or toner that went into its fabrication. Not that the paper and toner aren't delighted to have met you; in fact, we're thrilled not to be in that dweeb's wallet anymore. He's very heavy and his driver's license kept making passes at us.
